Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2016. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This is an autobiographical novel of a Venezuelan born who lives in a Mediterranean island. An optimistic view of a womans life, Clara Thinks to Us uses fantasy to present the reader with hope on different topics from social classes, to health, success and family. Clara is a middle class woman who loves science, music and travelling. She made the most out of the opportunities she had in her 88 years of life. In this book, she thinks about many issues that trouble any human being. It is her final interview and her legacy to the world in 2055. Clara recalls her birth country Venezuela as a paradise. She explains how it went from a land of opportunities to a dreaded place to escape from and back to the privileged position she believes it deserved. It took much introspection and analysis of the history of Spanish speaking America for her birth country to recover. And it eventually did. Clara battled food intolerances and allergies in her mid 40s that led her to cultivate her spirit and take care of her body using bioresonance, yoga and a healthy diet. She shares her story and how she developed The Wave, a movement for empathy to listen to people s struggles as they recovered from health issues. It started after she went into solopreneurship and failed. She discovered it was not her path and it s not for everyone. Clara is an advocate for the rights of homemakers, the title given to stay-home parents. She is also for a flat social structure and compares her experience in a society of classes to a less obvious one in her...
